

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The present invention relates to a personal identification method and system that enables families or small groups to efficiently provide recognition or identification pieces to members of the group or family to enable participation in an activity or event. The system includes a package having supply of business forms having one or more removable or detachable wristbands, software for creating the personalized wristbands and related marketing collateral and possibly promotional pieces.